Just wanted to give a little shout-out about An Uncommon Protector. It's my latest historical set in Texas, right after the Civil War. I hope you'll check it out! Here's a quote from a recent review on amazon.com:

"Y'all, this series has something very special... man love. That's right, I mean good old fashioned, band of brothers, solemn vow loyalty! Toss in a Texas damsel in distress, a dash of mystery, a splash of danger, and a healthy dose of romance and that, my friends, is a recipe for one delicious read!

Laurel Tracey is just another rancher's daughter-next-door until readers consider her resilience, determination, and tenacious work ethic..."
